

From readers: letters & emails:

CE Noticias Financieras English

October 7, 2019 Monday

Copyright 2019 Content Engine, LLC.

All Rights Reserved

Copyright 2019 CE Noticias Financieras All Rights Reserved

Length: 1434 words

Body

Letter of the week

Looking at others

The pilots argued the need for a seemingly fair wage recomposition to go to unemployment on the weekend, finally lifted. So I'd like to know what the gross salary they charge and the net of pocket that comes to them.

The "Israeli" exit, according to Laura Di Marco, included an agreement with the trade unions, in addition to the rest of society. It sounds totally unylogical that in the face of a deficit state, in a deficit and inflationary state, we do not think about pocket asymmetries, since we have 35% of the submerged population and with pauper incomes. Looking to the side, to the fallen, is humanist and Christian.

And that no one is offended, because I am not questioning the substance of the discussion, but the context in which it develops.

Ebert Wentinck

DNI 93,649,793

Logic

It is logical that employees of a chronically indeficit company intend to have their salaries updated exactly in relation to inflation. But I wonder if it would not be more logical for those same employees to thank the governments on duty that they have not closed the company, as would be the case for an impoverished country and whose resources should not be used in a loss-making company that we all pay , subtracting funds for other much larger expenses.

Well... nothing really makes sense in our Argentina!

Mauricio Balumelli

DNI 14,013,837

Challenge

The title of Nicolas Balinotti's note in last Thursday's diary read: "Pilots challenge Fernandez's request to lift unemployment." The only thing that comes to mind in the face of this attitude is that of "raise crows and they will rip your eyes out".

Denise N. de Gallagher

denisepgallagher@hotmail.com

Patriotism

Let's make a comparison to realize how we are. Take, for example, a country in the world in crisis after having suffered a war. To get out of that situation all its citizens sacrifice their individualities and push for the same side. That's called patriotism. Argentines, on the other hand, put our personal interests above the common good (stop pages and pickets, regardless of, in some cases with intent, the country exploiting). That's called collective selfishness and idiocy.

H. Guillermo Vidal Albarracín

DNI 4,433,082

Wanting and power

From readers: letters & emails;

It's true: if you want to, you can. Almost anything is possible when there is conviction, decision and, in addition, conditions are given. The problem is when "you don't want to", there's nothing to do there.

Argentina continues to show that a large majority do not want to. We see it in his leadership, especially in some judges, starting with the Supreme Court, and also in many businessmen. Despite the pain and suffering of the people, nothing moves them. His hypocrisy and masochism is as profound as his lack of greatness and patriotism. Organizations grow when people grow up. Always first people. Until we generate a critical mass of leaders capable of serving, yielding and resigning, we have no chance of succeeding.

Luis María Astarloa

DNI 14,876,142

A decent country

Months ago I bought tickets to go see Caetano Veloso sing with his children. After the first songs of the night, I felt that I was undoubtedly facing the best recital of the year. Pure poetry, emotion and talent. The audience was the hopeful. Over 35-40 years old who were able to disburse, on average, more than 3000 pesos per ticket. As soon as the recital ends, many of them in tone, with a football spirit, chants against Macri, as well as the very prosaic "we're coming back." And, indeed, they may come back. What no one there seemed to be aware of is that a government that robbed would return, tried to cover up the worst attack in our history, squealed the silver of the famous soybean at $600, he wanted to silence the statistical truths and in passing he devoted himself to stigmatizing the press. Healthy, Alberto Fernández no longer even tries to deny all this data of a reality too close. Among my memories of youth are those post-dictatorship marches, when we longed for the reconstruction of a country after years of obscurantism. Recover ingendialogue, democratic coexistence and dream of a decent country. That decency with which many of us continued to dream and who lacked in the Great Rex. Decency for those of us who didn't need to be pathologised footballs on the way out of a moment of beauty and poetry, whatever our ideology may be. Decency for respect for handbags rolled with the country's silver. Decency for many decades without knowing how to build a better society, among all.

Daniel Helft

DNI 14,391,445

Remand

Reader Maria Laura Olea rightly states in her September 26 letter that DD organizations. HH., with Cristina Fernández at the helm, argue that, in the corruption cases in which their roadcolleagues are prosecuted, the judges abuse preventive prisons, because they deprive people who, according to the law, maintain incolume the principle of innocence. However, as the reader rightly says, it is these same critics who, in every way possible, try to justify the pre-trial prisons of innocent people for decades, on the sole condition that they are accused of misbecalled crimes of humanity. The letters of readers published on this subject leave us with the bitter feeling that we are wasting our time on the waste of work of resisting what politicians and magistrates consider "politically correct" but inherently unfair. However, we must not lower our arms, for there must still be some consciences that are wondering why they do what they do. We cannot become mere panegrists of those judges who support issues that disguise them as a right, but who do not support the simple analysis of the common person, to whom the right is addressed. It is that, in rigor, we are now faced with judgments of thousands of pages that are built by copying and dictating unevenly other people's pages, thereby placing the accused in a state of substantial helplessness that can in no way be admitted in a Rule of law. In this way, then, thousands of innocent citizens who die in the dungeons are now deprived of their liberty.

Francisco García Santillán

DNI 10,661,522

Job creation

We need to create work to reduce poverty and, consequently, social plans. But, under the current conditions, no one is going to risk their capital without some incentive. So why is the installation of new companies not promoted with the obligation to create jobs? In return, they would benefit from the exemption of all types of taxes (national, provincial and municipal) during a certain period. There would be no tax cost, because those taxes are not collected today and as the street says "you don't already have it." There would be more work, poverty would be reduced and social plans would be reduced. The proposal is to exempt taxes for 5, 10, 15 or 20 years, depending on the number of jobs created, for example, from 4 to 10 jobs, 11 to 20, 21 to 50 and 51 or more, respectively. And if we were to deepen, 40% of the posts should be filled with beneficiaries of social schemes. So it wouldn't be raised any less than we don't get raised today, but social plans would diminish. And people would have jobs.

From readers: letters & emails;

Jorge A. Carabba

DNI 4,300,568

The VAR

The controversy unleashed by the time lost by the use of the VAR in football (adding up the one that is normally lost while the ball is not in play) would be easily solved by implementing net playing time as in basketball. It doesn't have to be 45 minutes, it could be, for example, 40, 35 or other. We have to study it.

Mario Milberg

DNI 7,611,498

On the net

Pichetto: "We must enter with the force of law in the bunkers; I didn't talk about dynamitthe villa."

Facebook

"It is very clear that he spoke of the drug traffickers, not the inhabitants of the villages, whom they just want to defend and it is being done since we won Change" -Mariaca Puig

"It was more than understood! It happens that they always misrepresent" -Eva Herrera

"I share with Pichetto, what law and what strength can he enter? They kill you without a peek, it's like penetrating a favela" -Msarta Canziani

"If drug trafficking is not fought, Argentina will remain the same, so this government is given a share of faith" - Odette Baez

Texts intended for this section must not exceed 15 lines or 1100 characters. The sender's name, signature, address, telephone number, and document number must be included. For space and style reasons, THE NATION will be able to select the material and edit it. Messages should be sent to: cartas@lanacion.com.ar or to the address: Av. del Libertador 101, Vicente López (B1638BEA) Buenos Aires, Argentina
Copyright Group of Diaries America - GDA/La Nación/Argentina

Classification

Language: ENGLISH

Publication-Type: Newspaper

Journal Code: CENFENG

Subject: WAGES & SALARIES (90%); CRIMINAL CONVICTIONS (76%); POVERTY & HOMELESSNESS (72%); LABOR UNIONS (71%); COMPANY LOSSES (71%); DIARY KEEPING & JOURNALING (69%); JUDGES (65%); LAW COURTS & TRIBUNALS (60%); SUPREME COURTS (60%)

Load-Date: October 8, 2019