Body

Michigan will no longer let illegal immigrants obtain driver's licenses, a practice just seven other states continue to allow. The secretary of state, Terri Lynn Land, who oversees the motor vehicle department, announced the policy and said it would take effect Tuesday. The policy also bars people who are legal but not permanent United States residents from obtaining licenses. Legislation to allow those on temporary work or student visas to get licenses is pending in the Legislature. The policy applies to first-time applicants for a Michigan driver's license or identification card. Updated procedures for renewals will be released soon. Hawaii, Maine, Maryland, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah and Washington do not require drivers to prove legal status to obtain a license.
