Body

Major provisions of California's Proposition 187 would:

-- Bar illegal immigrants from public schools and universities. By January 1996, schools would have to verify legal status of all students, their parents or guardians.

Illegal immigrants can now attend public higher education but are charged the higher rate for non-resident tuition.

-- Bar undocumented immigrants from care at publicly funded health facilities, except for emergency medical care.

-- Cut off aid from public social programs such as welfare and those directed toward troubled youth, the elderly and blind.

-- Force state, city and county law enforcement personnel to question those who are arrested about their citizenship status and report suspected illegal immigrants to the INS and the state attorney general.

-- Make it a state felony to manufacture false documents.
