Body

Challenger Kathleen Brown charged Monday that Gov. Pete Wilson intervened in 1989 with the Immigration and Naturalization Service on behalf of a campaign contributor who hired undocumented immigrant workers. Wilson aides acknowledged that the governor, then a U.S. senator, did write a letter to the INS the day after federal agents raided two San Diego hotels -- the Bahia and the Catamaran -- looking for illegal immigrants. But they argued that Wilson's letter did not defend the hotels' hiring practices and had no bearing on the outcome of the case, in which owner Anne Evans ultimately was fined $70,000.
