

Opinion Report: Romney Lurches Right on Immigration

The New York Times Blogs

(Taking Note)

January 12, 2012 Thursday

Copyright 2012 The News York Times Company All Rights Reserved

Section: OPINION

Length: 141 words

Byline: ANDREW ROSENTHAL

Highlight: A summary of what's on today's editorial page.

Body

Although generals in Pakistan say they don't want to govern, the military keeps pulling the strings. No civilian government will ever succeed under these conditions.

Health care spending in the United States increased at the slowest rate in half a century in 2009 and 2010. It's too early to know whether the trend of slower growth will persist after the economy improves.

There's something disheartening about a cold woodstove, so Verlyn Klinkenborg lights his despite the mild weather.

Mitt Romney has flipped and flopped all over on immigration, but in allying himself with Kris Kobach, architect of the nation's most radical immigration crackdowns, he has lurched toward the extremist right.

- Opinion Report: Supreme Health
- Opinion Report: Donald Berwick Speaks Out
- Healthcare: What Might Have Been
- Opinion Report: The Egyptian Election
- The Arizona Show

Classification

Language: ENGLISH

Document-Type: News

Publication-Type: Web Blog

Subject: TRENDS (88%); ECONOMIC RECOVERY (88%); TYPES OF GOVERNMENT (88%); IMMIGRATION (86%); ECONOMIC CONDITIONS (72%); US PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES 2012 (70%); US PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES 2008 (70%)

Opinion Report: Romney Lurches Right on Immigration

Person: MITT ROMNEY (79%); Romney, Mitt

Geographic: UNITED STATES (79%)

Load-Date: May 3, 2012

End of Document