Body

The Los Angeles City Council voted Wednesday to ban official travel to Arizona and block future contracts with companies there in protest of that state's new immigration law. Some members of the Council have repeatedly spoken against the law since its enactment, and several marched with immigrants-rights activists and thousands of protesters on May 1 in downtown Los Angeles to oppose the law. The Council has asked officials for the city's port, airport and utilities to review all contracts with companies based in Arizona.
