Body

In a celebration of Cinco de Mayo and a dig at Arizona's recent immigration enforcement bill, the Phoenix Suns will wear their "Los Suns" jerseys against the San Antonio Spurs today in Game 2 of their NBA Western Conference semifinal series. The Suns, up 1-0, wore the jerseys twice during the season as part of the NBA's Noche Latina, honoring the league's Hispanic heritage. Suns majority owner Robert Sarver blasted the immigration law in a statement Tuesday, saying it was flawed: "Our basic principles of equal rights and protection under the law are being called into question, and Arizona's already-struggling economy will suffer even further setbacks at a time when the state can ill-afford them." -- Jeff Zillgitt

Calipari, Kentucky working on new deal

Kentucky athletics director Mitch Barnhart said Tuesday that the university and John Calipari had begun discussions on restructuring the coach's contract. The statement came hours after reports Calipari was interested in joining the NBA's Chicago Bulls, who fired Vinny Del Negro on Monday. Calipari said on his Facebook page that he was very happy at Kentucky. He just completed the first year of an eight-year deal that averages nearly $4 million a season. Kentucky went 35-3 last season.
