A Pakistani, Kamran Akhtar, who was jailed in July after videotaping buildings in Charlotte, was sentenced to time served and turned over to immigration authorities for deportation to Pakistan. Mr. Akhtar, also known as Kamran Shaikh, pleaded guilty to possessing false identification, to missing a 1998 deadline to leave the United States after being denied asylum and to three counts of lying to the authorities. His lawyer, George Miller, said Mr. Akhtar's images, including buildings in Atlanta, Dallas, Houston and New Orleans, as well as the Charlotte skyscraper that is home to an office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, were tourist souvenirs.
